

51st INTERNATIONAL SMALL FRY TOURNAMENT

Ozzie Mazzetta Challenge Round: Small Fry changed its format in 2006, adding a Monday Challenge round to qualify the final eight teams for the International field. Therefore, 24 teams now travel to Orlando with an opportunity to win the International crown.

The 2019 International field includes:

- Seven former International champions: Avalon Runners; Bayamon ABB, PR; Bucaplaa, PR; Chicago Heights, IL; Highwood, IL; Homewood, IL; Kenosha, WI.
- Teams from Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands and 4 states: Florida, Illinois, New Jersey, Wisconsin.
- A “Moe Reed” Friendship Tournament and Rookie Tournament in 2019 expands the overall field of teams in Orlando to 30.
- Thirteen returnees from 2018 Final 16: Chicago Heights, Highwood, Kenosha, Robert Taylor, Bayamon ABB, Marquette Best, Southern Ponce, Homewood, Virgin Islands, Chi-Town, Big East, Bucaplaa, Tri-City.
- Two first-time qualifiers: Kissimmee All-Stars, Vega Baja.
- Three of last year’s Final Four: Chicago Heights, Highwood, Kenosha.

• Bucaplaa’s 2012 title-game win over Chicago Heights made it eight titles in nine years, the most impressive title string in history. On two other occasions, teams have won at least three straight crowns, including Liga Interclub (1976-79) and the Highwood Heat (1997-99). After winning seven titles from 1991-2000, the Midwest had been shut out for 16 years prior to the Kenosha-Chicago Heights back-to-back titles in 2017-18.

• Four teams from Puerto Rico have claimed multiple titles, including Liga Interclub (five), Fraigcomar (two), Ponce (four) and Bucaplaa (1986, 2004-2009, 2011-2012).

• Prior to the Highwood Heat’s three-peat in 1997-99, six different states/territories had won International crowns in six years. Starting with 1992 in New Orleans, the title was won by New Jersey (Newark, 1992), Puerto Rico (Fraigcomar, 1993), Wisconsin (Racine, 1994), Indiana (Gary, 1995), Chicago (Runners, 1996) and Illinois (Highwood, 1997).

• Twenty-three different teams have won International tournaments, as Bucaplaa became the 11th multiple winner in 2004. Other multiple winners include Racine (1972, 1981, 1987, 1994); Highwood (1997-99), the New York Harlem Satellites (1970, 1971, 1974); Liga Interclub of St. Juan (1973, 1976-79); Chicago Heights, Ill. (1980, 1991, 2018); Ponce, Puerto Rico (1984, 1990, 2010, 2015); Fraigcomar (1989, 1993), Puerto Rico (1989, 1993), Homewood (1985, 2000) and W Pullman Runners (1988, 1996).

• Three straight Bucaplaa-Fraigcomar title-game matchups (2006-08) was a first. Two different regions had met in five straight International title games prior to 2006, and the last three years broke a string of two straight same-region finals. However, before 2001 the International title had been decided within the same geographical region in nine of 10 years. The streak included: 1991— Chicago Heights over Highwood Small Fry; 1992— Newark over Riverside, N.Y.; 1993— Fraigcomar over Torrimar; 1995— Gary, Ind. over Highwood Small Fry; 1996— Chicago West Pullman Runners over Highwood Small Fry; 1997— Highwood Small Fry over Chicago Marquette Best. 1998— Highwood Small Fry over Chicago Heights. 1999— Highwood Small Fry over Chicago Washington Jaguars. 2000— Homewood over Chicago Washington Jaguars.

• Bucaplaa is the eighth team to play in at least four title games with 10, joining former co-leaders Racine and Highwood (seven each), Chicago Heights (six), Liga Interclub, Fraigcomar, Harlem Satellites, (five each), Homewood and Kenosha.

• Ponce (4-0) is one of eight teams to be perfect in title games, including Liga Club (5-0), Aibonito (1-0), Arecibo (1-0), And One (1-0), WC Outlawz (1-0), Solo Pirates (1-0) and Bayamon ABB (1-0).

• The Midwest or Chicago has been represented in the title game 30 of the last 40 years.

• Puerto Rican teams have a 24-9 record in championship games.

• The 50 previous champions have represented five different regions: Carribean (25), Midwest (14), East (5), Chicago (5) and West (1).

• Small Fry’s famous alumni include Tyler Ulis, Phoenix Suns (Chicago Heights), Nick Van Exel, Portland Blazers (Kenosha), Charley Scott, Boston Celtics (New York), Craig Hodges, Chicago Bulls World Champs (Chicago Heights); Mike Tomczak, Chicago Bears (Homewood); Butch Lee, Marquette 1977 National Champs (New York); Veltra Dawson, Villanova 1985 National Champs (Highwood); Will Bynum, Georgia Tech 2004 NCAA Runner Up (Chicago); and Donovan McNabb, Minnesota Vikings (Homewood). Sweet 16 NCAA qualifiers in the last decade years included Highwood alum Chris Wroblewski (Cornell), Homewood alum D.J. Cooper (Ohio) and Ulis (Kentucky).
